

BALLOONS

by James Torlakson
1986

Balloons pop
With a rushing of air,
The fabric of joy
Is subject to tear,

Some slowly shrivel
And lie in a heap,
All carnal pleasure
In time must sleep,

Bright, shining colors
Lighter than air,
Savor these moments
Tomorrow is bare.
